Not satisfied with the reply of the PIO, the Appellant filed an appeal with the first Appellate Authority on 5 August 2007 who vide his letter 26 November 2007 replied to it. Thereafter, the Appellant approached the Central Information Commission with a Second Appeal on 11 April 2008, which was registered in the Commission on 11 April 2008.

Decision:

6. The Commission heard both the sides with the Respondents maintaining that they had provided over one thousand pages of information to the Appellant. These pages consisted of the bio-data of the candidates who had appeared for the post of Deputy Librarian in the Organization. During the hearing, the Appellant stated that much of the information supplied through thousand pages was of little use to him and he merely wanted to know as to why his case was not considered for selection. In fact going by his original RTI-application, he wanted to know the reason "for not shortlisting my application for the post". As according to him, the information supplied does not address itself to his point specifically, the Commission now directs the Respondents to provide a reply with specifically this issue in mind. This may be done by 15 October 2008.

7. The case is thus disposed of.
